Liturgy of the Word

Psalm 121

"Let us go to the house of the Lord", they said,
Oh how great was our joy when we heard!
Now our feet are set firm on Jerusalem's soil
at the gates of the City of God,
May the house of the Lord be at peace.

For the city is blessed now with unity,
all restored in its beauty and calm.
Here the tribes of the Lord in their thousands have come to give thanks unto Israel's God.
May the house of the Lord be at peace.

For they come to sing praises and thanks to God,
and, as pilgrims, obey his commands.
In the city of justice where David has ruled they now pray for Jerusalem's peace.
May the house of the Lord be at peace.

In this city may wholeness and peace abound,
in your houses and palaces, peace!
For the sake of my friends and relatives here
for the sake of God's House, pray, "Shalom".
May the house of the Lord be at peace.

Gospel Verse

Gospel

Intercessions Together we pray:

Father,
We acknowledge your love for the whole human family
And we pray today for the peoples of Israel and Gaza
And all who live amidst violence, oppression and war.
Comfort those who suffer,
Change the hearts of those who use violence or force
Instead of dialogue, charity and the search for justice
As a way of solving national or international problems.
Help us and people everywhere
To learn the meaning of compassion and justice,
And to be capable of giving and of receiving forgiveness & peace.

We place the candles before the altar during the silence after each intercession

For all nations affected by war or civil violence: including the Holy Land, Ukraine, Syria, Yemen, Sudan, and all the troubled countries of Africa.....

We pause:

For the United Nations, the European Community and all rich and powerful countries: that they may accept responsibility to work for the common good. We pause

For the Church and the churches – that we may try to work together and give a better witness to the teachings of the Gospel.
We pause

For our own country, for the governments in London and Edinburgh, for our national institutions, for all schools, colleges and universities: that they may promote justice and peace. We pause

For our own families and community: We pause

For those whose lives have been stolen from them:

“May the souls of the faithful departed
